1935

Foreword

The small incidents, the many minor feelings and events that form your life and are so common today, will be most elusive to recall later. You will remember the main, bare facts of your high school and your progress, but you will not be able to live again through your former hopes, desires, fancies: you will not think of your early, dazed existence, your quickly passing, yet pleasant acquaintences, friendships, talks, fears, envies, and wonderings of your school scene. The intimate, life-giving details, of students, teachers, rooms, doubtful, confused moments, will have vanished. But a little picture, an amusing word, a relic of the past, can color the picture once more. And to help you in doing so is the purpose of this annual.

Senior Class History

In 1931 the present Senior Class entered the Woodrow Wilson High School.

While still in the grammar grades, we had been emphatically informed that we were a terrible bunch, and we thought ourselves quite the thing in troublesome children. Imagine our surprise when we were told, at the first chapel program after entering high school, that we were considered very good pupils, and that we looked to be a most promising class, in fact, one of the most promising that had ever entered Wilson High. What a gnashing of teeth there was at this startling information—we were goody-goodies—and thereafter we set about to be as mischievous as possible.

There came the unwanted and uncalled for day when we were to be initiated by the Sophomores. Some of our number objected violently. Margie Lee Phipps crawled under Miss Royston's desk to hide, but she was discovered and dragged out then and there. We were made to wear our clothes wrong side out. What a lot of raw seams were exposed! But we survived, and swore vengeance on next year's Freshmen.

For the first time we belonged to a real literary society. How proud it made us feel! We were well represented in other things too. Virginia Hiserman, Sara Baker, Pauline Thacker and M. V. Griffith began to make basketball fame. We had representatives in the Student Council. We gave chapel programs. Why, we felt as though we might be Seniors rather than Freshmen.

But this feeling soon changed. We realized, when we became Sophomores, that we didn't know as much as we thought we did.

Mr. Harmon was the Sophomore home-room teacher, and Miss Vaughn taught a class of Sophomore girls. While we were in Mr. Harmon's English class, we gave a series of debates which so interested Mabel Sharpe that she joined the Public Speaking and Debating Club; and shot straightway to fame by proceeding to make the debating team for that year.

Before the year had well begun, we had the pleasure of hazing the Freshmen. We did not inflict any great hardship on any of them, except the ones who were very particular about their style of dress and could not stand to come to school looking untidy.

The class officers of our Sophomore year were Wilbur Ross as class President, Billy Bragg as Vice-President and Pauline Thacker as class Secretary. Jewell Webb was selected to represent the Latin Club at the University, with Phyllis Saufley as alternate.

When we became Juniors we entered more and more into Scholastic activities. Stanley Garber was our class President, George Von Frank, our Vice-President, and Virginia Hiserman, our Secretary.

A dramatic Club was formed, with a Junior Class member as Secretary. We had class members holding offices in a number of other clubs too. Mabel Sharpe made the debating team once more and won a great many debates in the county contests. George Von Frank was selected as Latin representative that year.

Very soon after we entered school as Seniors in the fall of 1934, we were impressed with the fact that we had a position to fill. I think we have filled it very well.

The Senior Class was organized in the early winter. Cordelia Mohler was chosen class President; Stanley Garber, Vice-President; George Von Frank, Secretary and Melvin Jennings, class Treasurer.

We had in our class several star players on the athletic teams of our school. Among these were Billy Bragg, Stanley Garber, and Sonny Gordon. In addition, Stanley Garber was captain of the boy's basketball team and manager of the football team during his Senior year. Francis Conner was manager of the basketball team for 1935, and also President of the Monogram Club. Robert White acted as manager of the baseball team for the same year.

Virginia Hiserman was captain of girl's basketball; Mabel Sharpe, their manager. Others who were on the first team from our class were Elizabeth McClung, Sara Baker, Pauline Thacker, and M. V. Griffith. During this year these girls won practically all of the games played with other schools.

Try-outs were held in the Reading and Spelling Club, of which George Von Frank was President. He won first place in two of these try-outs.

In the Public Speaking and Debating Club, of which Mabel Sharpe, a Senior Class member was Secretary, try-outs were also held. Mabel Sharpe, Elizabeth Fay Davies and Della Clark were chosen to represent the school in the debating contests in the county and state.

The Dramatic Club was composed primarily of Seniors. The officers were all from this class. The President was Robert White; Secretary, Katherine Ross, and Treasurer, Cordelia Mohler.

Plans were made for a Senior play entitled "The Volunteer Wife," which was given in the spring. The cast was as follows: Cordelia Mohler, Billy Bragg, Pauline Thacker, Robert White, Sara Baker, Mabel Sharpe, Stuart Sampson, and Hilda Holbert.

Then came commencement. We found that Mabel Sharpe and George Von Frank were to make talks on class night. Mr. Jennings secured for us a prominent speaker from Charlottesville. And so we graduated.

High School is now a memory—for most of us a happy one.

Senior Class Will

We, the class of '35, being of sound mind (?), sweet nature, and being possessed of many valuable and highly desirable traits, and belongings, hereby bequeath, hand over, bestow, or otherwise give the said traits and belongings to many envious lower classmen, in this our class will and testament.

George Von Frank regretfully leaves his book satchel to the one and only Sleepy Snyder.

To Evelyn Shumate, Jewell Webb leaves her solitude.

Charlene Mattox leaves her passion for pretty clothes to Grace Chandler.

To Dorothy Kennedy, Clementine Doyle leaves her silence.

Katherine Ross, now having all the boy friends she can well take care of, leaves her winning ways to Betty Gamble, in hopes that she will put them to good use.

Dorothy Maxey leaves her dramatic ability to Helen Craig.

Cordelia Mohler leaves her place as "guardian angel" to Evelyn McGann.

Jean McClung leaves her place as "class vamp" to Katherine Terrill.

Mabel Sharpe hands over her love for public speaking to Edward Turner.

With best wishes, Pat Menefee hands her cap and gown to Mary Yancey.

Margie Lee Phipps hopes her freckles will be treated with much consideration by Margaret Dorrier, to whom these marks of beauty are left Pauline Thacker, being through with blushes forever, affectionately hands hers over to Frankie Huff.

Agnes Buchanan leaves her love of history to Fil Hubbard.

So that Wilson High will not miss her calm, serene manner, Anna Garber leaves it to Nancy Burton.

The happy-go-lucky ways of Wilbur Ross are bestowed upon Cletus Pannell.

Stanley Garber leaves his place as captain of the basketball team to Jimmy Hogg.

We all know why the girls fall for Billy Bragg—who appoints as his successor, Ray Frasher.

Sonny Gordon leaves his athletic ability to Sammy Gilmore.

Robert White leaves his place as manager of the baseball team to David McLaughlin.

Genevieve Scott hands her wit to Anna Tucker, who is requested to use it with discretion.

Elizabeth Fay Davies leaves her place as editor of the Gossip Column to Imogene Burton.

M. V. Griffith leaves her handwriting to Rebecca Doniel.

To Hazel Barker, Grace Wimer bequeaths her knowledge of Commercial Law.

To Mary Frances Hawkins, Charlotte Wright, with best wishes, leaves her marcelles and finger waves.

Francis Conner, after much deliberation, leaves his "up and doing" air to Bobby Via.

Maynard Baber kindly gives his studious manner to Wallace Dodd.

After much thought and meditation, Sara Baker leaves her soft voice to Virginia Mohler.

Elizabeth McClung will divulge the secret of her so-called natural curls to Edna Maxey.

Sometimes shyness is a desirable trait. Realizing this, Curtis Floyd has willingly agreed to leave his portion of it to Benton Rosen.

Cecil Harding leaves his ability to be lazy and handsome to "Sot" Gallaher.

The indifferent attitude of Edwin Hopkins should be of great value to Virginia Ellinger.

Virginia Hiserman leaves her ability to play basketball to Isabel Fisher.

Ada Rowe leaves her curls to Estelle Philibert.

Bill Harlowe bequeaths to Julius Stombock, his wit and laziness.

Melvin Jennings leaves the qualities that make him so attractive to the ladies to Ralph Spitzer.

Jack McFall leaves his ability to sleep in class, to Robson Coiner.

Jane Menefee leaves to Daisy McClung, her friendly air.

To Mary Jane Chambers, Marjorie McGann leaves her weekly correspondence with "Jack."

Bill Davis regretfully wills his blue hat to Lewis Bagby, in hopes that it will be treated with care.

Phyllis Saufley leaves her years at Wilson High School to George Diedrick.

Senior Class Prophecy

In reading a strange newspaper some months ago, I noticed an announcement that thereafter a column would be printed concerning prominent graduates of prominent schools. Immediately I knew that those graduates of Wilson High School, class of '35 would have their names published there.

From time to time the following items appeared in the column;

Sara Virginia Baker, professional nurse, recently visited Spain on a tour.

Agnes Buchanan, teacher of history in Wilson High School, has introduced a new type of teaching throughout the schools of Virginia.

The construction of the dam in Death Valley is under the supervision of Francis Conner, prominent for his engineering feats.

Alice Wright, otherwise known as Charlotte, has been recently acknowledged the greatest opera singer of the age.

Mary Margaret Farrar and Anna Garber, who are authorities on "What to Feed the Husband" will visit the old home town soon.

Professor William Bragg, English teacher of Harvard University, Stanley Garber, M. D., head doctor of one of Chicago's largest hospitals, and Wilbur Ross, outstanding American mathematician, who has held the Einstein Professorship at Harvard for a number of years, have resigned from their respective positions to form a company whose purpose is to publish books and decorative handbills.

Clementine Doyle saved the life of Miss M. V. Griffith, when she fell into South River last Saturday. Miss Doyle will receive a medal for this heroic deed.

Cecil Harding, stratosphere explorer, sailed away in a balloon the other day and has not been seen since. It is popularly believed that he is now worrying the inhabitants of Mars.

James Gordon was elected to Congress from Virginia with a majority of thirteen votes. His opponent was Genevieve Scott, former Senator from this district.

A double wedding of Miss M. V. Griffith and Miss Virginia Hiserman was held Monday. The brides wore purple and gold, old school colors.

Miss Hilda Holbert is making a great success as a comedian on Broadway

Edwin Hopkins and Maynard Baber, well known scientists, have discovered another element. Again they have rendered a great service to humanity.

Miss Charlene Mattox and Miss Della Clark have recently been appointed on the board for criticism of books published by Garber, Bragg, Ross, and Co.

Miss Jane Menefee, Marjorie McGann and Jean McClung are, at present, in charge of the famous home for taking care of stray and aged cats.

Patricia Menefee is a most noted woman doctor of the United States. She will attend a convention in Vienna soon.

Miss Pauline Thacker has become the second "Singing Lady" of America. She has thus combined her talent for telling bedtime stories with that of singing.

Miss Mabel Sharpe and Miss Elizabeth McClung have recently become professional basketball players, the first ever known.

Miss Cordelia Mohler is now a head secretary to the President of Montgomery, Ward and Company.

Katherine Ross and Dorothy Maxey, are to be presented in the Court of England this spring. Miss Maxey will render several concerts at a request of the King.

Margie Lee Phipps and Phyllis Saufley have formed a company which has for its purpose the betterment of chewing gum flavors.

Mr. William White has recently been elected President of Yale University, where he has been instructor for some years. He is the youngest person who has ever held the position.

Grace Wimer and Jewell Webb are two of the most popular motion picture stars of their time. Grace only recently showed talent for acting, but Miss Webb has been heading for stardom for many years.

Robert White is at present, Business Manager of the New York Herald, of which George Von Frank is editor.

Curtis Floyd is director of the largest brass band of Waynesboro, Virginia.

Miss Ada May Rowe has founded a school for aged school teachers—the subject taught: "How to Grow Old Gracefully."

Jack McFall has recently accepted a position with the International Correspondence Company, where he will write textbooks about English.

Melvin Jennings is at present working on a new picture in Hollywood, "The Handsome Hero," in which he is taking the leading part.

Bill Harlowe has joined the Barnum and Bailey Circus, in which he will take the character of a clown.

William Davis has become President of the A. and P. Company. He has been employed by them for some time.

of a Wilson High School Student

EVERY DAY HE READS

The NEWS-VIRGINIAN

"Waynesboro's ONLY Newspaper"

B E C A U S E . . . . .

. . . . He finds there ALL the news of Wilson High School and Waynesboro.

. . . . He finds there EACH WEEK the JUNIOR NEWS-VIRGINIAN, edited and operated by Wilson students.

. . . . He finds there all the news of the world he needs and wants brought to Waynesboro by The Associated Press.

. . . . He finds there "Alley Oop," "Out Our Way," "The Newfangles,"
"This Curious World," "Stories in Stamps," and other features he would not "miss for the world."

QUALITY SERVICE

THESE are the two dominating words in producing an annual or yearbook. The first means that every detail in your book be of the highest order. It means that the product shall be as nearly flawless as possible. We believe that our books have this quality as year after year they receive honors in all contests entered. The word service is usually depicted as meaning to produce some thing in due time. We feel that in our work this word has a broader meaning. Our service on your yearbook means giving the editor and staff helpful criticisms, ideas that are new and different, layouts that are attractive and years of experience to help you make your imaginative ideas—printed realizations.
